Now that school has begun, is it really possible to manage time in such a way that everything gets done? What is it that must be done and what can be laid aside in the homeschooling day? If we all have the same number of hours in a day, how is it that some people seem to get more done than others?

This session will focus on several key principles that when understood and applied will bring peace in the home. Linda will also address two key areas every woman must attend to as it relates to providing a home that welcomes her husband at the end of the day.

Topics will include:

- Time vs. energy management
- Schooling with a toddler in the house
- How long should school really take?
- Is it ok to let middle and high school students sleep in and do school later?

Come ready to make the most of this time and be sure to bring your questions.

About Linda Werner

Linda Werner has a passion for family. For nearly 30 years Linda has openly shared her homeschooling joys and challenges with many audiences. Her message is powerful and filled with hope. Linda speaks with enthusiasm, passion, and truth. If there is one thing she will share with every mom and dad it is this, "If God has called you, He will be faithful and help you do this great task! Take one year at a time and fully engage and you will love what you will learn!"

She has been married to her husband Jim for 37 years and together they have five married children along with nine grand children. Their four oldest grand daughters are currently homeschooling and are students at Circle Christian School (CCS).

Linda began homeschooling in 1983 when her oldest daughter was ready to begin kindergarten. None of the five Werner children ever attended a traditional school.

Linda and Jim founded CCS in 1985. CCS is a private Christian school for families who choose to homeschool their children in the central Florida area. Circle is unique in that it provides many academic, athletic, and arts opportunities for families if they choose to use them.

Currently the organization serves more than 500 families and 800 students in grades K-12.

Legacy Principles

In addition leading CCS, Linda has also founded Legacy Principles, where she shares her passion to encourage women in their high calling of womanhood. For nearly 30 years Linda has influenced and trained hundreds of women in their roles as mothers and teachers. Her passion includes teaching and mentoring women as she challenges them to pursue personal growth for God's glory.
